Classroom Management

Tip of the Week

Let's reflect together!

Reflection involves meditation or serious thought about one's actions. Think of it as looking back so that the view looking forward is clear!

- In which areas of classroom management was I most successful?
- When was a time that I felt joyful and inspired?
- How did I incorporate student voice and choice into my management plan?
- How did I incorporate student success criteria into my classroom management plan?
- What can I do this summer to help me be even more effective next year (including making time for rest and relaxation)?
- Which of my classroom management strategies worked well? Where is there a need for improvement?
- Are there things about the learning environment and classroom organization that I want to change?
- What classroom management strategies am I most excited to implement next year?
- How can I start building relationships with my students on day #1 of next year?
- How can I build stronger relationships with my colleagues?
